

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display device is constructed with conductive fibers which are coated with a display medium and are woven together with transparent conductive fibers.

- 5 The conductive fibers coated with a display medium serve as warps and the transparent conductive fibers serve as wefts. The display device is not provided with an external electrode and is therefore flexible like plain cloth.